Description of Site Redden State Forest, located just north of Georgetown in Sussex County, offers more than 44 miles of trails for hiking, mountain biking, bird-watching and hunting on several thousand acres. The most popular trail is a four-mile loop around the 1,836-acre Headquarters Tract. Visitors will find hardwood trees and loblolly pine as they explore this well-traveled trail. The trail cuts through dense woods, across bridges and through swamps and meadow areas. There are several smaller trails to explore off this main trail as well. There are additional spurs running off the HQ loop navigable by carriages, though they often dead end requiring you to turn around. This is easily done due to trail width.

Directions to Site To access the trail from Georgetown, take State Route 113 north and turn east on E. Redden Road/Road 565. Turn right into the Headquarters Tract at Redden Forest Drive, just past the railroad tracks. Parking is available at the headquarters building on the right after the fishing pond.

Conditions at Site Pavilion, port-o-potty available. Park on grass opposite Ranger residence except during very wet conditions. MUST call HQ before arrival (number above) and ask for gates to be open to accommodate carriages entering the trail. This is easily done; Jr. Webb is the person to usually ask for.

Visitors who wish to stay overnight at the park may camp at one of the 142 campsites on the pond's northern shore - some sites are open year round and they have every thing from primitive sites to cabins and yurts. However no pets or equines are permitted in the camping area (yes on trails). There are three main trails which are conducive to equestrian activity - Boundary (3.6 miles), Bob (4.6 miles), and Huckleberry (1.8 miles). The park is open daily from 8 a.m. to sunset.

Directions to Site Trap Pond State Park is located at 33587 Baldcypress Lane, Laurel, DE 19956. There is fairly good road signage along Route 13 and Route 24. GPS is also accurate. The macadam parking area near the Baldcypress Nature Center is large and accessible. There is an admittance fee charged daily from March 1 to November 30 and this is based on your residence (in state = $4 and out-of-state = $8). The campground is located at 15702 Goose Nest Rd., Laurel, DE 19956.

Conditions at Site Parking, picnicking, and bathroom facilities are all very accessible. Trailer parking in on a macadam surface. However you are sharing the space and trails with hikers and all other guests. This is a pretty place to train a green horse as well as take a short, leisurely drive (approximately 4 mile loop). To add miles to your drive you need to travel on the roadways surrounding the park. Traffic is fairly light in that area. Even though it states there are almost 9 miles of trails for equestrians, the Bob Trail is not fully accessible to horses. The park does an excellent job of maintaining and marking the trails - the terrain is fairly level and easy for horses. Most of the paths are shady and dry (even when it has rained recently). However you do need to watch for hikers, bikers, etc. as there are some blind curves.

There are two to three levels to drive that connect via short access ramps of the same footing as the trail itself. You may encounter motorized vehicles also. Description of Site The trail system at Bucks County Horse Park uniquely sets us apart from other horse parks in the northeast. Only at BCHP can one hack into the woods, gallop down a former airstrip, forge across the end of a pond, and enjoy a leisurely walk up and down wooded hills. Trails originate on the main section of the Park property owned by the Bucks County Park and Recreation Department and meander through dedicated easements on private property as well as trails graciously lent to us by our neighbors. Throughout the history of the Park, many trails have been established and marked for use. The passage of time, hurricane Sandy, and other strong storms have taken their toll on the trails. Currently the Bucks County Horse Park is focusing energy and time repairing the trail system for Park members and visitors.

Description of Site The Pocomoke State Forest consists of 17,676 acres of land, with the bulk of these mostly public forestlands lying in an area that runs roughly southward from Salisbury to around the Pocomoke River, bounded on the west by U.S. Route 13 and on the East by Maryland Route 12, the road from Salisbury to Snow Hill. The state forest is famous for its stands of loblolly pine and for its cypress swamps. The best trails for carriage folks are located in Worcester County. There are probably over 25 miles of trails available.

Directions to Site As this is a large area, the best site for carriage drivers is the Foster Tract. It is located off Maryland Route 12 (also known as Snow Hill Road). The site has a large sign posted at the entrance which is a one mile single lane road back to the parking area which is quite large.

Conditions at Site Horseback riding/carriage driving is allowed on maintained forest trails and roads designed to accommodate recreational use. Many of the Public Use tracts have parking areas that can accommodate horse trailers. However the best parking is at the Foster trailhead which can accommodate larger horse trailers with carriages. The trails vary in terrain, but are generally flat. There may be road crossings or standing water on these trails. Trail guides and maps are available for purchase at the Chesapeake Forest/Pocomoke State Forest and Pocomoke River State Park offices. There are posted maps at the trailheads and most trails are well marked with color coded signage. The best trail to drive is the Algonquin Cross County trail which is 12.5-miles winding through the Chesapeake Forest and Pocomoke State Forest from Snow Hill Road (MD Route 12) south of Salisbury to Milburn Landing State Park. The Chandler tract has a total of 6.8 miles of trails with multiple loops. You may have to call the ranger (Jessica Massey) to open a gate near the Foster trail. Hunting with rifles, handguns, shotguns, bows and muzzleloaders is permitted in all designated areas and visitors are encouraged to wear blaze orange if they drive during the hunting seasons. This site has an active Facebook page with many photos and reviews as well as helpful information from current trail conditions to fly and tick reports. There is no motorized or off-road vehicle recreation use allowed on Pocomoke State Forest or Chesapeake Forest trails. Minimal restroom facilities.

Description of Site Six marked trails with numbers and colors (4 loops, 2 connecting) are available. Maps can be downloaded from the Department of Natural Resources. There is also a mobile App called Avenza which works with trail maps and tract maps from the Forest Service website. Dark Blue Trail: 2.6-mile loop trail. A parking area for large vehicles is located at the head of the trail on Morris Road. A picnic area is located at the convergence of the loop trail approximately 0.6 miles from the parking area. Green Trail: 1.0-mile loop trail around the arboretum. This trail shares a section with the White Trail. Red Trail: 2.2-mile loop trail. This trail shares a section with the White Trail. Growing and mature pine and hardwood forests and a habitat restoration project with an early successional forest plan are the highlights of this trail. White Trail: 6.1-mile loop trail. This trail shares some sections with the Green and Red Trails. As the longest marked loop trail, this trail features numerous pine stands and management regimes indicative of the Wicomico Demonstration Forest. Light Blue Trail: 0.8-mile trail that parallels the northwestern portion of the White Trail between Sixty Foot Road and Seymore Road. Orange Trail: 0.7-mile trail that connects Shavox Road and the White Trail to the Light Blue Trail. Parking for the Green, Red, and White trails is available at the Wicomico County Forestry Office on Sixty Foot Road. The parking area on Sixty Foot Road can accommodate several large horse trailers. Additional parking for the Red, White, Light Blue, and Orange trails is available on Shavox Road, Seymore Road, and Powell Road.

Directions to Site From Route 50 in Salisbury, MD heading towards Ocean City, MD, turn onto Sixty Foot Road (major intersection - soon to have traffic lights). Follow Sixty Foot Road for approximately 1.5 miles and the entrance is on the left. Well marked with signage.

Conditions at Site Wicomico Demonstration Forest is primarily forested land and is used by the Maryland Forest Service to demonstrate various timber management techniques and practices. Hence there may be hikers and bikers sharing this area. This trail system varies slightly in terrain, but is generally flat. There are two road crossings and after heavy rains there may be standing water on some trails. A ranger lives on site and parking is very good at the Sixty Foot Road Office. Efforts are made to keep the trails mowed and sprayed with Roundup.

Description of Site: Quehanna Equestrian Campground (Yellow Snake Campground)
Reservoir Rd and Quehanna Hwy (State Route 1011) Karthaus, PA 16836
This is a primitive campground with good equestrian facilities. There are 6 large camp sites with room for larger RVs or tents. Each campsite has tie stalls suitable for large horses or several smaller equines. There are probably room for at least 18 horses. There is ample fresh water, although you have to carry it a bit. There are close to 100 miles of trails for riding/driving. I measured the main trail leading to the campground and my large draft cart easily fits through. Only small issue is where the trail begins it's blocked to keep vehicles out. It is easy to work your way around. The initial trail is crushed stone, partially packed, and not too large of stones for barefoot. The remaining trails vary. Some are dirt roads, dirt trails, and some are packed roads shared with vehicles.

The area is mountainous and some trails may be steep for a smaller equine. However ample trails that follow ridgelines or more gradual paths exist. The area is removed from traffic and is remote. The PA wild elk herd roams the area and you may encounter them, depending on where you are. There is an elk viewing center an hour or less drive away. There are rattlesnakes in the area but I have not encountered many and I have hiked the area for years. DCNR schedules the usage of the campground which is free of charge but only for equestrian use. There are some hotels in Clearfield, PA which is not too far away (20-25 miles) and the nearest town with restaurants and some limited shopping. (Tractor Supply and Rural King for horse feed, etc.). The area is extremely remote and I cannot stress that enough. There is limited cell service also. I would avoid this area during the deer hunting seasons.

My trail recommendations:

I consider myself a beginner driver who is extremely cautious. Much of my trail experience is hiking with a walking stick the width of my draft cart. I am interested in trails through the woods, at least 6 feet wide, soft footing, minimal rocks; I am not a fan of packed roads that vehicles use but a good friend of mine rides and drives the roads regularly and loves them. She is a very experienced horsewoman and I really trust her judgement.

There are two areas that I love.

The first is the area near the campground and the favorite trails are Mohawk Trail, Erie Camp Trail and Chipper Trail. Black Powder Trail probably belongs in this group but it's not yet a favorite (but one of the longest continuous trails). All of these trails are multiple use, motor vehicles are prohibited, but all are wide enough for a vehicle in an emergency. Each of these trails is protected with a gate. (I have been told that the gates can be unlocked to get carts through but I never tested that—usually there is room to work around them). Mohawk Trail is a special use in that handicap hunters are able to enter with a vehicle. (Note: requires a separate handicap placard very different from the standard placard issued for those with mobility challenges). I have only hiked a few miles at the beginning of these trails. You can see the grade and connecting trails on the map. These 4 trails are all wide enough for a large cart and at least the first few miles are plenty wide, I have not done the connector trails yet so I cannot attest to the width. In this same general area is another non horse trail (Kunes Camp Trail) that leads to an old camp built into rock. It's a nice hike but horses are not permitted and its not suitable. I am told there are sometimes snakes on the rocky areas of Kunes Camp Trail. The second area I love is north and east of the campground. You would probably want to trailer to these from the campground but you could get to them by driving/riding. There are three nice loops and you could do all 3 in a day. (Power Line Loop, Gore Loop) None of the three is very long alone.

The parallel non powerline portion of the Power Line Loop has fantastic scenery and is the longest. It's one of my favorite places. The power line portion of the trail is not as majestic but not a bad trail. I once saw a head of Elk there. The other two trails Gore Loop and a loop that connects the two are both scenic with easy grade and good footing. All are wide enough for large carts or to ride side by side if VSE and that's your preference.

Two other trails worth noting are Riddle Road which starts at the parking, viewing, restroom area called Hoover Farm. It's a nice little trail, very wide through nice gradual terrain and it's a partly a nice section of woods. (one end is not gated at this time). However, the trail is only about 2 miles round trip. The other notable trail is trail #11. We actually did this one with a mini and cart. It's about 5 miles round trip. There are some roots and a few mud holes on this one but except after a heavy rain, can work your way around. It's very straight and has options.

This is only a sample of available trails. There are many more but I have first hand knowledge of each of these.
